

Before I placed my name on the no-call list I was receiving telemarketing calls at all hours of the day including weekends. Now, I get maybe one call a week. If I want to get a credit card or cemetery plot I can call to get info myself, I don't want to have anyone call me and try to sell me something. They are usually scams anyways. I am also concerned about the elderly that the telemarketers target. We all need some protection. Isn't that what the government is supposed to do-protect the people?
